

Executive Business Intelligence Report

Executive-Level Insights for Board Meeting: Structured Bullet Format

1. Introduction:

Welcome all board members and introduce the topic, focusing on the problem to be discussed and the significance of addressing it.

2. Key Facts:

Disclose key facts about the industry, market, competition, and target customer group. Use bullet points or tables for more detailed information.

3. Problem Analysis:

Identify the root cause of the issue, such as a lack of knowledge among employees about customers' needs, inefficiencies in operations, or weak branding. Highlight the significant impact on revenue and profitability.

4. Potential Solutions:

Discuss potential solutions that have been tried in similar situations, including customer education programs, improved operations, and strategic partnerships. Provide specific examples of companies or industries that have successfully addressed similar problems.

5. Mitigating Factors:

Identify mitigating factors, such as cost savings from implementing solutions, or new revenue streams that could emerge from addressing the problem.

6. Potential Trade-offs:

Discuss potential trade-offs between options for implementing a solution and their impact on revenue, profitability, and customer satisfaction.

7. Outcomes and Timeline:

Discuss the expected outcomes of the proposed solutions and timelines for implementation. Provide projections of revenues, profits, and customer satisfaction in the short and long term.

8. Action Items:

Present actionable items, such as a list of tasks or actions that need to be completed to move forward with implementing the suggested solution(s).

9. Conclusion:

Summarize the key takeaways from the analysis and emphasize the importance of addressing the problem for long-term success.